

Computational Fluid Dynamics

Computational Fluid Dynamics is used at InteLAB to analyse and better understand biotechnological and biomedical processes.

One particular area of interest is the development of advance pharmacological stents (more...); the other one is in the role of shear stress in bench scale biorreactors.